A Word from Bishop Medley

My dear people of God,

Last month Hurricane Matthew skirted the east coast of the United States from Florida to North Carolina. Though it seems the hurricane never officially made landfall in the U.S., it was nonetheless the most damaging storm to affect the continental U.S. in more than a decade. Tens of billions of dollars of damage is being assessed, and more tragically more than 20 people have died in North Carolina alone from storm related incidents.

In the days just prior to Hurricane Matthew beginning its trek along the U.S. Atlantic coast the storm struck the tiny island nation of Haiti with full force. Haiti is the poorest country in the western hemisphere. I have been blessed to visit Haiti a couple of times when the parish where I was a pastor had a twin parish in that country. The poverty is staggering. A typical home in the villages where I visited was likely a structure of a few poles with loosely fastened scrapped sheet metal walls and roof. Usually there would be a dirt floor and almost never running water.

There was a constant stream of mostly women and girls carrying five gallon buckets filled with water from the nearest stream, which could be several hundred yards or even miles away. The stream sides were always crowded with women washing clothes, an everyday activity as few would have had more than a single change of clothing. Cooking was conducted over a wood fire outside.

Life is hard. There is little opportunity for employment. The once mahogany rich forests have decades ago been stripped clear. Inexplicably much of the land is owned by the government and lies barren; no one is permitted to farm it.

After the hurricane I read of one village where only 17 structures out of 300 were still standing. Those who had so very little lost what they had. Though estimates of the death toll across the island have arisen to 800, the precise number will never really be known. Villagers will not know whether people died or just moved away. Often bodies were swept away in streams and carried to the ocean, never to be recovered or identified.

On the Sunday after Hurricane Matthew struck Haiti I read that churches across the island were packed. And where churches had been destroyed the people gathered for open-air Masses. The Gospel read that Sunday (Luke 17:

11-19) is the same Gospel most of us will hear if we go to Mass on Thanksgiving Day, the story of Jesus healing ten lepers where only one returned to give thanks.

May this be our Thanksgiving Day meditation. We would look to Haiti on its best day and wonder what the people could be grateful for. But the stark truth is that the churches of Haiti were filled on its worst day with people giving thanks for the blessings of God.

Local family describes journey, blessings from open adoption

BY ELIZABETH WONG BARNSTEAD, THE WESTERN KENTUCKY CATHOLIC

Roger and Kathy Martin have heard stories of people learning at age 18 that “by the way, I’m not your biological parent; I’m your adoptive parent.”

Thankfully, this isn’t the story for either their son, Lucas, or their daughter, Avery. But it’s one of the reasons why they’re glad they embraced open adoption.

Kathy said one thing she loves about this adoption style is “there are a million different scenarios of open adoption. There are different levels of openness, and that’s what’s awesome about it.”

While Roger and Kathy met and got to know the birth moms of both Lucas and Avery, the two adoption journeys were incredibly, and beautifully, different.

Pursuing adoption

Roger and Kathy had been hoping to start a family for several years when they decided they were meant to pursue adoption.

“I was getting depressed, but (Roger) said, ‘no, there’s something else for us,’” said Kathy.

They had seen some stories in The Western Kentucky Catholic about adoption through Catholic

The Martin family – Avery, Kathy, Roger and Lucas – shared their story with The Western Kentucky Catholic on Oct. 6. WKC photo.

Adoption Awareness Month

November is National Adoption Awareness Month. Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Owensboro partners with three other Catholic Charities adoption agencies in Kentucky to provide statewide pregnancy help and adoption services through A Caring Connection network. To learn more, visit kycaringconnection.org.

Charities in the Diocese of Owensboro, and signed up for the informational adoption classes.

Catholic Charities encourages open adoption, but at first the idea “was super scary... I’d never heard of that before,” said Kathy.

After the informational classes, however, the Martins decided they’d like to pursue open adoption.

“How could you not want the kids to know things about where they come from?” said Kathy. “Catholic Charities really explained it well.”

Lucas

The Martins were told that it can take years for a couple to be notified of a potential adoption, but with Lucas, their phone rang after only three months.

And when Roger and Kathy met Lucas’ birth

mom, “we connected instantly” said Kathy.

“We knew right away, and his birth mother knew right away as well,” she added. “We couldn’t wait to see each other.”

Lucas’ birth mom even asked them to attend the delivery and Roger actually caught him and cut the cord.

Kathy remembers what the birth mom said after Lucas was born. She told her to go take care of him: “You’re a mama now.”

Avery

When Lucas was two years old, the Martins realized they were being called to pursue the adoption journey for a second time. This time the wait was longer, and they waited another two years before they received a phone call.

“They said there is a young lady who is willing to meet with you guys,” said Kathy. “And she’s due in March.”

Avery’s birth mom had to decide between two couples, and Lucas was the reason the Martins were chosen. They had met at a restaurant to have a meal together, “and (Lucas) led the prayer before we ate,” said Roger.

At Avery’s birth, Kathy was the first one to hold her.

Sharing the love

Their second experience was more bittersweet, Kathy explained.

“It was hard to see (Avery’s birth mom) going through what she was going through,” she said. “We literally left the birth mom’s hospital room carrying Avery out, and that was the hardest thing.”

The Martins said it was hard to celebrate at first, “because we were feeling (the birth mom’s) heart-break.”

While the Martins and both kids’ birth moms are now happy with their decisions, the experience gave Kathy and Roger an appreciation for the sacrifice made.

“It’s easy for people to judge them and say I can’t believe that they would do that, give up their child,” said Kathy. “But if you’re not feeling like you can raise that baby and give them a home, there is someone who can, and there is somebody who’s willing to share the love of the child with you.”

Family time

These days, the four Martins enjoy family activities together like fishing, attending drag races, going to the zoo and going to the beach. They also celebrate Gotcha Days, which commemorate the days that the kids became part of their family.

“We celebrate that probably more than their birthdays,” said Roger.

Kathy explained that Gotcha Days usually mark when the families came together. But since the Martins were present for both kids’ births, “we made our Gotcha Days the day that the adoption was finalized.”

Kathy posts pictures of their family activities on social media, and since she’s connected with both kids’ birth moms, they are able to see them grow up.

“I post a lot!” said Kathy with a chuckle.

Meet the Martins

Listen to the Martin family share their story in a video interview which will be made available in November on the Diocese of Owensboro’s social media.

For Kentucky-raised Sister of Life, ‘everything becomes a prayer’

BY ELIZABETH WONG BARNSTEAD, THE WESTERN KENTUCKY CATHOLIC

At first glance, the daily list of making beds, cleaning bathrooms and making rooms neat does not seem very spiritual.

But for Sister Elizabeth Grace Rhodes and her fellow Sisters of Life who minister at Villa Maria Guadalupe retreat house in Connecticut, this is a “ministry of hospitality,” and this daily grind is actually “paving the way for Christ.”

“As a consecrated person, all of your work is worship,” said Sister Rhodes, who professed first vows as a Sister of Life on Aug. 22, 2016. “Everything becomes a prayer.”

Sister Rhodes is no stranger to seeing work as prayer. She grew up on a farm in Whitesville, where her parents raised their nine children as faith-filled parishioners of St. Lawrence in Philpot. Prior to entering the Sisters of Life, she taught chemistry at Owensboro Catholic High School.

Sister Rhodes explained that as a contemplative/active sister, her first priority is prayer. In fact, she spends four-and-a-half hours a day in prayer, with prayer time broken up among her other duties.

The 28-year-old said she was first drawn to the New York-based Sisters of Life through their service toward women with crisis pregnancies. Many of her fellow sisters minister directly to those in crisis pregnancies, and also to women and men who seek healing from past abortions.

She said the post-abortive healing retreats have expanded more than any of their other missions during the Year of Mercy.

Year of Mercy
JUBILEE YEAR 2015-2016
Living the Year of Mercy

The Jubilee Year of Mercy was established by Pope Francis to last from Dec. 8, 2015 to Nov. 20, 2016. The Western Kentucky Catholic is celebrating this holy year by featuring a series highlighting individuals who live the Works of Mercy around the Diocese of Owensboro. Our final story comes at the conclusion of the Year of Mercy, and introduces us to Sister Elizabeth Grace Rhodes, who grew up in Whitesville and now with her Sisters of Life community works to serve and “pray for the living and the dead.”

Even serving at the Connecticut retreat house, which is not strictly for those grieving an abortion, Sister Rhodes has seen that “people come in various states, and have all been affected by the culture of death in some way.”

It helps that the sisters’ charism is the Charism of Life, which she said affirms the fact that each human life has dignity and worth – despite a modern culture that tends to degrade life.

Sister Rhodes said it is “so foundational” to always see peoples’ value “in the perspective that God sees them,” and the sisters strive to live this in every interaction.

Bowling Green puppy-raiser preps dogs to accompany owners with disabilities

BY ELIZABETH WONG BARNSTEAD, THE WESTERN KENTUCKY CATHOLIC

When Holy Spirit parishioner Teresa Hart doesn't bring a dog to church, people ask where he is.

It's an honest question, since Hart raises puppies for Canine Companions for Independence (CCI), a non-profit that partners highly-trained service dogs with individuals who have disabilities.

Hart frequently has a puppy-in-training by her side, and these days it's Nye II, her ninth CCI dog.

"When I take my dog to church with me, it not only educates the congregation about service dogs, it is a great training for my dog to learn how to behave in church," said Hart.

Hart and Nye do more than sit in the pew: Hart is an acolyte (adult altar server), so when she goes up the aisle, so does Nye.

She has no trouble with the 14-month-old yellow

Labrador, and for his part, Nye doesn't seem perturbed by any stares as he remains quietly at her side or under a chair during the liturgy.

"Peoples' faces light up when they see the dogs," said Hart.

Hart said CCI has very high standards for the dogs: "Only about 45 percent get placed with someone with disabilities."

Six of Hart's dogs have graduated, one left the program for medical reasons and one did not want to be a service dog. Hart said dogs that do not meet the requirements may remain with the raiser, or CCI refers to a list of people willing to pay a $500 adoption fee to receive the "released" dog.

CCI dogs are "always free to people who qualify," she said.

Hart said Nye will leave her in February 2017 for six months of professional training "and hopefully find his forever person and become a service dog."

On Oct. 19 Hart's 10th CCI puppy, Lambeau, arrived from the CCI dog breeding location in northern California.

Hart's favorite part of raising the dogs ties into the question people ask most frequently: "How can you give them up?"

The best part for her truly is "seeing them graduate and help people with disabilities."

Quoting a fellow puppy raiser, Hart explained, "don't pity us or admire us as puppy raisers for being strong enough to give them up. Envy us for being lucky enough to give them up in precisely this way."

Every time she and Nye are out "doing normal things" like grocery shopping, going to a movie, eating at a restaurant, or attending a sporting event, "people learn about service dogs."

Hart said that raising the dogs has taken her out of her comfort zone to "appreciate more the talents God has given me to raise and teach these dogs, and to understand and walk in the shoes of people with disabilities."

"Many people explain to me that either their child has a disability or a friend has a disability, and they want to know how to apply for a dog," said Hart.

Hart said these dogs give people their independence back: "People don't see their disability; they only see the beautiful dog."

St. Sebastian burns the mortgage

Cathy Burden of St. Sebastian Parish in Calhoun writes: “Father John Igacho, pastor of St. Sebastian in Calhoun, burned the mortgage on our building loan at a special Mass of Thanksgiving on Aug. 14, 2016. Celebrations continued after the Mass with a potluck meal and special music. A tornado destroyed the former church and other parish buildings in January 2001, just a few hours after Bishop McRaith held Confirmation in the church. The small parish immediately began plans to rebuild. The new church was dedicated in May 2005. After insurance, grants, two pledge drives, memorial contributions, and many, many fundraisers, the building loan was retired in May 2016. We at St. Sebastian would like to thank all of our friends and neighbors who helped us realize this accomplishment!”

VOCARE 2016 draws more than 400 people

Friday, Sept. 23 was the Diocese of Owensboro’s third annual VOCARE event, which celebrates, promotes and fundraises for vocations to the priesthood and consecrated life. This year drew approximately 464 people from all around the diocese.

VOCARE 2016 began with a social hour featuring the Owensboro Convention Center’s bourbon bar, and the opportunity to have participants’ photos professionally taken. The event included dinner and a keynote from Andy Day, an Owensboro native who today serves as southeast regional director of FOCUS, the Fellowship of Catholic University Students.

Emceed by Fr. J. Patrick Reynolds, vicar general in the diocese, the evening also included prayers led by Bishop Emeritus John J. McRaith, Sister Amelia Stenger, OSU, and Fr. David Wilton, CPM.

New this year was the honoring of all priests, religious and married laypeople, and giving a small gift – a rosary blessed by Pope Francis – to those who had been ordained, vowed and married the longest.

That night, through pledges and donations, $21,543 was raised to support seminarian education. As of this paper’s printing, a total of $102,526 had been raised through additional donations received. Next year’s VOCARE will be held on Sept. 22, 2017.

Year of Mercy Walk/Run a success

St. William and St. Lawrence Parishes in Knottsville and Philpot held a Year of Mercy Walk/Run on Oct. 1, which drew 89 walkers and runners. A total of the $3,240.50 will be shared with the following charities: Bishop Soenneker Home, St. Benedict Homeless Shelter, Birthright of Owensboro, Daniel Pitino Shelter, Crossroads Hope for Women and Children, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, and the St. Gerard Life Home. Based on the walk/run's success, the parishes hope to make this an annual opportunity to fundraise for charities.

The committee and participants are especially grateful to Annette Connor, the head of planning the project, who contacted the road department, obtained a road map for the route, organized a police escort, arranged an ambulance on standby, and worked with the Knights of Columbus and the Lions Club to guide road entrances. She also helped coordinate the food both during the walk/run and afterward at the parish hall. She also provided a vehicle in case anyone needed help getting up the route's particularly steep hill.

Additionally, the committee thanks Trinity High School for lending the use of their Spirit Bus to bring people back to Knottsville at the end.

Container headed to Sister Diocese in Mandeville, Jamaica

On October 19, twelve volunteers assisted the Office of Social Concerns, as they loaded a container for our sister diocese in Mandeville, Jamaica.

Over the summer and fall, donations were received and packed for loading into the container. This included backpacks, notebooks, coloring books, pencils, school desks, shoes, diapers, children's clothing, and healthcare-related items such as exam room chairs, disposable gloves, walkers and canes, and much more. A separate container with three playgrounds was also sent.

There were three areas of greatest need: educational, healthcare and outreach supplies. This container project takes place every two years. Schools, clinics and outreach centers are the recipients for these supplies.

Celebrating Black Catholic History Month

BY F. VERONICA WILHITE, OFFICE OF BLACK CATHOLIC MINISTRY

November is the month that we honor the men and women from Africa and of African descent who have pioneered our faith. Many are unaware that Christianity did not start in Europe and that black Catholics have had a significant impact on the history and traditions of Christianity. Three popes—Saints Victor I, Melchisedech, and Gelasius I—were born in Africa and led the early Church through much turmoil.

There are many black Catholic saints such as Monica of Hippo, Augustine of Hippo, Perpetua, and Felicitas to name a few; and leaders such as Rev. Augustus Tolton who is currently a candidate for sainthood and Daniel Rudd, founder of the National Black Catholic Congress, whose actions and witnesses of faith helped shape the Church into what it is today.

Black Catholic History Month has been celebrated by the Church since its institution in 1990 by the National Black Catholic Clergy Caucus. The month of November was selected because it holds special days for two prominent African Catholics: St. Augustine whose birthday is on November 13, and St. Martin de Porres whose feast day is celebrated on November 3.

November 1 is the day that we celebrate All Saints Day – an opportunity to review the lives of the hundreds of saints of African descent in the first 300 years of the Church.

November 2, All Souls Day, is a time to remember all of those Africans lost to cruel treatment in passage on the slave ships.

Let us remember all saints, living and deceased this month as we strive for Christian unity and continue to embrace our diversity.

A Black History Month calendar for daily reflection from the Diocesan Office of Black Catholic Ministry has been sent to each parish. If you did not receive it please contact the office.

Blessed Sacrament Chapel preps for annual community dinner

BY ELIZABETH WONG BARNSTEAD, THE WESTERN KENTUCKY CATHOLIC

On Sunday, Nov. 20, Blessed Sacrament Chapel in Owensboro will hold its annual community Thanksgiving dinner at noon.

The free meal has seen people from all walks of life, including homeless individuals and families from the area who come for the positive community.

“People have said that if they didn’t have this place to come and eat, they wouldn’t have a Thanksgiving dinner,” said Shelby Webster, one of the volunteers.

Sister Jeannette Fennewald, SSND, parish life coordinator at Blessed Sacrament, came to serve at the parish last year and has been involved in planning the meal. She said that parishioners contribute time, effort and supplies to the meal.

“I was amazed last year at the donations,” she said. The hearty meal usually features macaroni and cheese, candied sweet potatoes, turkey and dressing, gravy, mashed potatoes, greens, cornbread, and all kinds of desserts.

Some parishioners traditionally provide a certain dish each year, such as Jean Higgs’ family, who has provided the greens. Other times the order is switched up and someone new contributes to the menu.

Marsha Allen, another volunteer, said that it’s “a good time for fellowship for all the parishioners,” and added that “no one is turned away.”

The number of participants varies, but volunteer Gloria Adams said that the gatherings have grown to be about the size of Blessed Sacrament’s picnics – more than 150 participants.

“The original aim was to feed the hungry,” said Adams, and explained that the dinner has evolved to be open “to all of Owensboro.”

Fellow volunteer Barbara Hammond said Blessed Sacrament’s dinner has become an opportunity for other local churches to build community. While the cooks and volunteers are always from Blessed Sacrament, a number of non-Catholic church groups enjoy coming and eating together.

Hammond said that one year, one of the local churches’ services ended late “and they were worried they’d miss the dinner,” but fortunately there was still plenty of food.

Allen said if local shut-ins cannot come to enjoy the dinner with the community, “we make sure they are brought Thanksgiving dinner.”

And again, “it’s all free because we have big-hearted people here at Blessed Sacrament,” said Adams.

Prohibition and sacramental wine

BY HEIDI TAYLOR-CAUDILL, OFFICE OF ARCHIVES

Today, we accept that the wine used to celebrate the Eucharist is easily available. This was not the case in the United States from 1920 to 1933, when a constitutional ban on the production, importation, shipping and sale of alcohol was in effect. For thirteen years, priests in every diocese had to deal with an incredible amount of bureaucratic red tape to legally obtain wine for sacramental use. A trace of this red tape survives in the Diocese of Owensboro archives, revealing another aspect of the story of Prohibition in western Kentucky.

Certain uses for wine were permitted during Prohibition, including sacramental purposes. The Bureau of Prohibition issued permits to wineries to produce sacramental wine. This wine could be sold only to a priest who had filed an application with the Bureau. Once the application was approved, the priest was allowed to procure ten gallons of wine for sacramental use per year.

Monsignor Louis Beruatto of St. Joseph Church at Leitchfield was one of the many priests affected by the Bureau's application process. The Archives holds his 1922 application where in he requested ten gallons of wine from Beaulieu Vineyard in California. He would have had to make at least four copies of the form and mailed them to the Diocese of Louisville for "authentication." The Diocese would then forward all the forms to the winery. Once the wine was ready to ship, the winery would keep one copy of the form, send one to the Bureau of Prohibition, send one back to the Diocese, and give one to the carrier.

Looking back, it is astonishing the effort it took for Prohibition-era priests to obtain sacramental wine. We would love to know more about this time in the Diocese. If you have stories, please contact us at heidi.caudill@pastoral.org or call 270-683-1545.

Spring Women's Retreat: Called by Name

March 10-12 | Led by Sr. Cheryl Clemons
Fee: $180 (includes retreat, materials, meals and accommodations) or $130 for commuters.
Some women needed physical healing for themselves or for their children. Others needed spiritual healing and forgiveness. Still others wanted to give instead of receive, offering resources of money, support, encouragement and understanding to Jesus and his male companions. The gospels indicate that many women were part of Jesus' life and the gospels written afterwards; however, most of them remained unnamed. During this weekend, retreatants will be invited to walk along the dusty roads of Gospel lands and the concrete sidewalks of today, reflecting on the power and mystery of being named. As retreatants observe how Jesus responds to and names selected Gospel women, they will be invited to listen for the voice of God calling their own name in love. In the process, the issue of personal identity and the power of naming will be brought to both prayer time and group sharing.

Gennesaret Retreat (for chronic or seriously ill) March 17-19

Those who have a chronic or serious health issue could be a candidate for the Gennesaret retreat, designed for persons whose medical conditions would otherwise hinder them from attending a weekend overnight retreat. Some examples of conditions are multiple sclerosis, diabetes, ALS, epilepsy, cancer, stroke and respiratory heart disease. Each person who applies will be contacted by the medical coordinator and the spiritual director to be sure the retreat can meet their needs. A prospective retreatant must manifest a level of awareness and stamina that would allow him or her to profit from the retreat's spiritual activities. There are a limited number of retreatants taken for each weekend.

The retreat is open to all faiths but will focus on the Roman Catholic traditions and prayer experience. The word Gennesaret comes from the Gospel of Mark 6:53-55.

The retreat is being offered by the Diocese of Owensboro and hosted by the Ursuline Sisters of Mount Saint Joseph. There is no cost for participants. Gennesaret retreats are financed by generous donations from parishes and individuals.

Join St. Stephen Cathedral for Eucharistic Adoration on Election Day, Nov. 8

"Faithful citizenship"—this is a call from the Holy Father.

Pope Francis tells us, "The people are sovereign. I will only say: Study the proposals well, pray and choose in conscience." Prayer is the best "medicine" for our ailing political climate. St. Stephen Cathedral, the mother church of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Owensboro, invites all the faithful to join together for Eucharistic Adoration. We will offer this time in the Real Presence of our Lord and Savior as we pray for the elections, and for those who will be elected to office. We will begin with Holy Mass at 12:05 p.m., on Tuesday, Nov. 8, followed by Exposition and Adoration until 6 p.m., when the polls close. The church will be open to anyone who wishes to spend some time in prayer for the election process. But, if you are able to commit to a specific time, please contact the Cathedral Parish Office.

You may sign up for 30 minutes or for an hour. Call (270) 683-6525 or email beni.howell@pastoral.org. Invite your friends and neighbors to pray for guidance during this election time. Please, vote!

Una Palabra del Obispo Medley

Mi muy estimado Pueblo de Dios,

El mes pasado el huracán “Matthew” abatió la costa este de los Estados Unidos desde la Florida hasta Carolina del Norte. Aunque al parecer de forma oficial el huracán nunca tocó tierra en los Estados Unidos de todas formas ha sido la tormenta que más daño ha causado en más de una década. Se calculan son billones de dólares en daños y más trágico aun es que más de 20 personas han perdido la vida en solo Carolina del Norte debido a incidentes relacionados a la tormenta.

En los días previos en que el huracán “Matthew” comenzaba su trayectoria en la costa del atlántico, la tormenta con toda su fuerza abatió a la pequeña isla, la nación de Haití. Haití es la nación más pobre del hemisferio. En el pasado he tenido la bendición de visitar Haití en un par de ocasiones cuando en la parroquia de donde era párroco tenía una parroquia hermana en ese país. La pobreza es impresionante. Una vivienda típica en las aldeas donde visité se sostenía solo de algunos palos y con pedazos de metal amarrados conformando la pared como también los techos.

Usualmente los pisos son solo de tierra y casi nunca hay agua potable.

Constantemente había filas, sobre todo de mujeres y niñas cargando cubetas de cinco galones llenas de agua de los arroyos más cercanos que podían estar a buena distancia a veces incluso millas. Los arroyos siempre estaban congestionados con mujeres lavando ropa, una actividad diaria ya que pocos tenían más de un solo cambio. El cocinar se hacía afuera con leña. La vida es dura. Existe muy poca oportunidad de empleo. La riqueza forestal del ‘mahogany’ por décadas ya ha sido desaparecida. Inexplicablemente de la mayor parte de la tierra el gobierno es dueño y esa tierra se mantiene estéril. A nadie se le permite cultivarla.

Después del huracán leí que en una aldea donde habían 300 estructuras solo 17 seguían en pie. Aquellos que tenían tan poco perdieron lo que tenían. Aunque el número de fallecidos a través de la isla ha aumentado a 800, el número preciso nunca se sabrá. Las personas en las aldeas no sabrán si es que otras personas han muerto o si se fueron a otro lugar. Muchos de los cuerpos fueron arrastrados por las corrientes hasta el océano, para nunca ser recuperados o contabilizados.

En el domingo que siguió del impacto del huracán “Matthew” en Haití leí que las iglesias a través de la isla estaban llenísimas. Donde las iglesias fueron destruidas las personas se reunían para la misa al aire libre. El evangelio que se leyó ese domingo (Lucas 17; 11-19) es el mismo evangelio que la mayoría de nosotros escucharemos si vamos a Misa el día de Acción de Gracias. La historia de Jesús sanando a diez leprosos donde solo uno regresó agradecido.

Que esta sea nuestra meditación de Acción de Gracias. Podríamos ver a Haití en su mejor día y preguntarnos, ¿por qué cosa es lo que la gente podría estar agradecida? Pero la gran verdad es que las iglesias de Haití estaban llenas en su peor día con el pueblo dando gracias por las bendiciones de Dios.

Familia local describe su jornada, las bendiciones de una adopción abierta

POR ELIZABETH WONG BARNSTEAD,
EL CATÓLICO DE KENTUCKY OCCIDENTAL

Roger y Kathy Martin han escuchado historias de algunas personas que se enteran a la edad de 18 años que “por cierto, no soy tu padre biológico; soy tu padre adoptivo.”

Afortunadamente, eso no es la historia de su hijo Lucas ni su hija Avery. Pero es una de las razones que están agradecidos por haber aceptado una adopción abierta.

Kathy dijo que una cosa que le encanta sobre este estilo de adopción es “que hay un millón de situaciones de una adopción abierta. Hay diferentes niveles de apertura, y eso es lo que es tan maravilloso.”

Aunque Roger y Kathy conocieron las mamás biológicas de ambos Lucas y Avery, las jornadas de adopción fueron diferentes de forma increíble y bella.

Buscar adoptar

Roger y Kathy llevaban años esperando empezar una familia cuando decidieron que fueron llamados a buscar la adopción.

“Yo me estaba deprimiendo, pero (Roger) dijo, ‘no, hay algo más para nosotros,’” dijo Kathy.

Ellos habían visto unos artículos en el Católico de Kentucky Occidental sobre la adopción a través de Caridades Católicas en la Diócesis de Owensboro, y se inscribieron para las clases informativas sobre la adopción.

Caridades Católicas anima a la gente hacer adopciones abiertas, pero al principio la idea “nos dio mucho miedo...nunca había escuchado de eso antes,” dijo Kathy.

Después de las clases informativas sin embargo, los Martins decidieron que les gustaría buscar adopción abierta.

Lucas

Les dijeron a los Martins que puede tomar años para que una pareja sea notificada sobre una posible adopción, pero con Lucas, sonó su teléfono después de solo tres meses.

Y cuando Roger y Kathy conocieron a la mamá biológica de Lucas, “tuvimos una conexión inmediatamente,” dijo Kathy.

La mamá biológica de Lucas incluso les pidió estar en el parto y Roger lo pudo agarrar y cortar el cordón umbilical.

La Familia Martin – Avery, Kathy, Roger y Lucas – compartieron su historia con el Católico de Kentucky Occidental el 6 de Octubre. Foto del WKC.

Kathy recuerda lo que dijo la mamá biológica después del nacimiento. Le dijo vete a cuidarlo: “Ya eres una mamá.”

Avery

Cuando Lucas tenía dos años los Martins se dieron cuenta que estaban llamados a buscar la jornada de adopción por segunda vez. Esta vez el tiempo de esperar fue más largo y esperaron otros dos años antes de recibir otra llamada.

“Ellos dijeron que había una joven que estaba abierta a conocerlos,” dijo Kathy. “Y espera su bebé en marzo.”

La mamá biológica de Avery había escogido dos

Para Hacer Informe de Alegatos de Abuso Sexual

Cualquier persona que sepa de un abuso de un menor de dieciocho años es obligado por ley informarles a las autoridades estatales apropiadas: policía local o la línea dedicada para el Abuso Infantil de Kentucky (gratis: 1-877-KYSAFE1; 1-877-597-2331).

Además, para informar a la Diócesis sobre el abuso por parte de algún personal (pagado o voluntario) de la Iglesia, en el pasado o presente, favor de llamar a la Coordinadora de Asistencia Pastoral a esta línea confidencial: 270-852-8380. La Diócesis de Owensboro acaba de revisar su reglamento sobre el abuso sexual, efectivo el 1 de Julio del 2014 y está disponible en todas las parroquias y también en el sitio web diocesano (www.rcdok.org/safe).

parejas y tenía que escoger entre ellas. Lucas fue la razón que ella escogió a los Martins. Ellos se habían conocido en un restaurant para compartir una cena juntos, “y (Lucas) guio la oración antes de comer,” dijo Roger.

En el nacimiento de Avery, Kathy fue la primera en sostenerla.

Compartir el amor

Su segunda experiencia fue más agri dulce, explicó Kathy.

“Fue muy difícil ver lo que estaba pasando (la mamá biológica de Avery), lo que estaba viviendo,” dijo. “Literalmente salimos del cuarto de hospital de la mamá biológica con Avery en las manos, y fue lo más difícil.”

Los Martins dijeron que fue difícil al principio celebrar, “porque estábamos sintiendo el corazón roto (de la mamá biológica).”

Aunque los Martins y las dos mamás biológicas ahora están felices con sus decisiones, la experiencia dio a Kathy y Roger un aprecio por el sacrificio que hicieron.

“Es fácil para la gente juzgarlas y decir no puedo creer que harían eso, entregar a su hijo,” dijo Kathy. “Pero si sientes que no puedes criar a este bebé y darles un hogar, hay alguien que sí lo puede hacer, y hay alguien que está disponible compartir el amor del niño contigo.”

Tiempo en familia

Ahora a los cuatro de la familia Martins les gusta hacer actividades en familia como ir a pescar, ver carreras de carros, ir al zoológico y a la playa. También celebran lo que le llaman “días de te agarramos”, cuando conmemoran los días que los niños formaron parte de su familia.

“Celebramos ese día más que sus meros cumpleaños,” dijo Roger.

Kathy explicó que los días de “Te agarramos” normalmente marcan cuando las familias se juntan. Pero como los Martins estuvieron presentes en los nacimientos de los dos niños, “nosotros pusimos nuestros días de “Te agarramos” el día que se finalizó la adopción.”

Kathy pone fotos de sus actividades en familia en las redes sociales y como está conectada con ambas mamás biológicas de sus hijos, ellas pueden verlos crecer.

La Capilla del Santísimo Sacramento se prepara para la cena anual de Acción de Gracias para la comunidad

POR ELIZABETH WONG BARNSTEAD, EL CATÓLICO DE KENTUCKY OCCIDENTAL

El Domingo, 20 de Nov., la Capilla del Santísimo Sacramento en Owensboro llevará a cabo su comida anual del Día de Acción de Gracias para la comunidad al mediodía.

La comida gratuita ha traído a personas de todos los ámbitos de la vida, incluyendo a personas sin hogar y familias del área que vienen por la convivencia positiva.

“Personas han dicho que si no tuvieran ese lugar para venir y comer, no comerían una cena de Acción de Gracias,” dijo Shelby Webster, una de los voluntarios.

La Hermana Jeannette Fennewald, SSND, coordinadora de la vida parroquial en Santísimo Sacramento, vino a la parroquia el año pasado y ha estado involucrada en los preparativos para la cena. Ella dijo que los parroquianos contribuyen tiempo, esfuerzo y provisiones para la comida.

“Me quedé asombrada el año pasado de las donaciones,” dijo. La comida abundante normalmente consiste en macarrones con queso, camotes caramelados, pavo y relleno, carne en su salsa, puré de papas, col berza, pan de maíz y todo tipo de postres.

Algunos parroquianos por tradición proveen una cierta comida cada año, como la familia de Jean Higgs, quienes traen el col berza. Otras veces la orden se cambia y alguien nuevo contribuye al menú.

Marsha Allen, otra voluntaria, dice que “es un buen tiempo para convivir para todos los parroquianos,” y añadió que “no se niega a nadie.”

El número de participantes varía, pero la voluntaria Gloria Adams menciona que la cantidad que se junta ahora ha crecido igual al tamaño del picnic de Santísimo Sacramento - más de 150 participantes.

“Nuestra meta original fue de dar de comer al hambriento,” dijo Adams, y explicó que la cena se ha desarrollado para “estar abierta a todo Owensboro.”

Su compañera Barbara Hammond dice que la cena del Santísimo Sacramento ha llegado a ser una oportunidad para otras iglesias locales construir comunidad. Aunque los cocineros y voluntarios siempre son del Santísimo Sacramento, muchas personas de iglesias no-católicas disfrutan llegar y comer juntos.

Hammond dice que un año los servicios de una de las iglesias locales terminaron tarde y “estaban preocupados que iban a perder la cena,” pero afortunadamente todavía había suficiente comida.

Allen dijo que si hay personas que no pueden salir por cuestiones de salud para disfrutar la cena con la comunidad, “hacemos lo posible para llevarles la cena de Acción de Gracias.”

Otra vez “todo es gratis porque tenemos a personas con grandes corazones aquí en Santísimo Sacramento,” dijo Adams.

La Iglesia San Sebastián termina su deuda de hipoteca

Cathy Burden de la Parroquia de San Sebastián escribe: “El Padre John Igacho, párroco de San Sebastián en Calhoun simbolizando el fin de la deuda hipotecaria le prendió fuego al certificado de préstamo de nuestro edificio en una misa especial en acción de gracias el 14 de agosto del 2016. La celebración siguió después de la misa con una comida y música especial. Un tornado destruyó la iglesia anterior y otros edificios de la parroquia en enero del 2001, unas horas después de que el Obispo McRaith celebró la Confirmación en la iglesia. La pequeña parroquia empezó planes de reconstrucción inmediatamente. La nueva iglesia fue dedicada en mayo del 2005. Después de lo que recibieron del seguro, subsidios, dos campañas para recaudar fondos, contribuciones en memorial, y muchos, muchos eventos para recaudar fondos, por fin se pagó el préstamo en mayo del 2016. ¡Nosotros en la parroquia de San Sebastián nos gustaría agradecer a todos nuestros amigos y vecinos quienes nos ayudaron realizar esta meta!

Cathedral docents enlighten visitors, parishioners

BY DONNA TARANTINO, SPECIAL TO THE WESTERN KENTUCKY CATHOLIC

“Peace to All Who Enter Here” are the words set in a mosaic located over the entryway of St. Stephen Cathedral. Entrance through those doors provides a stunning interior view, but the numerous Christian features inside might go unnoticed by visitors and quite possibly Cathedral parishioners. Cathedral tours are a wonderful way to learn about the history and art of the Cathedral, and volunteers in the St. Stephen Docent ministry are pleased to share their knowledge to groups or individuals interested in a tour.

Docent Eddy McFarland often begins with the suggestion to “look up!” as tour participants gather around the baptismal font. Above the font is a feature depicting the names of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John, and the animal symbols often associated with the evangelists. McFarland also says that he often hears exclamations of “wow” when visitors enter the Blessed Sacrament Chapel, dedicated to honor Bishop Emeritus John Jeremiah McRaith.

Bridgette Whittinghill’s service in this ministry is important to her on a personal level. William LeRoy Hayden, grandfather of Bridgette’s husband Rob, owned Hayden Planing Mill, which crafted the window frames for the Cathedral. Rob’s family has belonged to St. Stephen since before construction of the building at its current location began in 1924.

Denise Payne feels honored to serve as a docent. As a lover of history, she says, “it is an opportunity to share my faith and a part of our community’s past. The stained glass windows bring the saints to life as we talk about their love of Jesus. The visitors then see themselves as part of a much larger church family.”

Planning for a tour program began in 2012 with compilation of comprehensive historical and art information and development of a training guide. Although informal tours were conducted in November 2012 to coincide with the Cathedral rededication, the program officially began in September of 2013.

Since then the program has increased, including annual tours led during Fall Festivals and throughout the Jubilee Year of Mercy. The development and growth of the program is due to the efforts of those who have offered their talent and dedication along the way, including members of the Restoration & Renewal Committee, the Marketing & Communications Committee, and the volunteers who proudly serve as docents. Thanks also to Kathy Wright, Cathedral Docent Ministry Coordinator.

'Purposeful Retirement': A retreat at Holy Name

BY LINDA PAYNE, SPECIAL TO THE WESTERN KENTUCKY CATHOLIC

On Sept. 16-18, 19 members of Holy Name of Jesus Parish were participants in the second retirement retreat entitled "Purposeful Retirement." While it's commonly noted that "Money can't buy happiness," it is evident to those who work for a living that it is required for the years that follow a job or career. However, what's not always evident is that the common saying also fits the retirement years; money can't buy a purposeful retirement. Most of us learn how to prepare financially for our retirement. However, many fewer have the understanding of how to make those years productive and meaningful.

The participants on this weekend were introduced to the 15 topics that can lead a retiree to understand what makes a successful retirement and what God's plan might be for him or her in the retirement years. The retreat master was to be Richard P. Johnson, Ph.D., author of "Creating a Successful Retirement: Finding Peace and Purpose." However, due to unforeseen circumstances, Dr. Johnson was unable to be in Henderson.

In his stead, Fr. Anthony Shonis, who has attended more than one of Dr. Johnson's sessions, served as the retreat leader for the weekend. Using Dr. Johnson's books and materials, Fr. Shonis explained the topics pertaining to retirement and led the group in topic discussions including career reorientation, personal empowerment, and spiritual meaning. Those attending are now closer to understanding their own unique significance and can better find their own opportunities for growing closer to Christ throughout retirement. A personalized Christian Retirement Challenge Profile was derived from answers that each retreat member submitted on individual questionnaires prior to the weekend. This profile is a guide to planning steps to achieve personal success and satisfaction in retirement.

I was fortunate to be one of the participants on this weekend. I recently retired from a career in education and struggled a bit to find meaning in the following months. What did I learn on this weekend? I learned that the talents I used in my work can be applied to my retirement, that discerning opportunities to help others and finding the best "fit" for me provides purpose, that there are literally hundreds of opportunities, and that success comes only with much prayer that Christ guides me daily.

I did return to work. However, now I have tools I can use to plan for my next retirement. I don't know when that will be, but I do know it will be purposeful.

Office of Social Concerns seeks 'a few good people'

BY RICHARD MURPHY, OFFICE OF SOCIAL CONCERNS

The diocese seeks people willing to serve in a ministry as Inclusion Representatives. An Inclusion Representative is someone who has some knowledge of disabilities, whether from personal or professional experience, and is willing to use this knowledge to serve others with disabilities and their families in their parish and in the diocese. Ideally, each parish would have a representative, but in areas where parishes are combined by locale, priests, etc. one representative might serve. The representatives are guided and led by the Disabilities Awareness Committee, a group of volunteers with experience in disabilities, under the Office of Social Concerns at the McRaith Catholic Center. For a list of Inclusion Representative requirements and responsibilities, please visit our website, owensborodiocese.org/social-concerns. After you've viewed the requirements and responsibilities, if you feel called to serve or have questions, please contact your parish office, your priest, or Social Concerns Director Richard Murphy (270) 852-8343 or richard.murphy@pastoral.org.

National Vocation Awareness Week: How you can help

BY FR. JASON MCCLURE, OFFICE OF VOCATIONS

The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) has designated November 6th - 12th as National Vocation Awareness Week. This annual celebration is dedicated to promoting vocations to the priesthood, diaconate and consecrated life and for continuing our prayers and support for those who are considering one of these particular vocations.

National Vocation Awareness week began in 1976 when the U.S. bishops designated the 28th Sunday of the year to observe the need for developing a culture of vocations. Beginning in 2014, the observance was moved to the first full week of November.

As part of our diocesan vocation plan to celebrate vocations, each parish, school, and campus ministry is encouraged to observe this week in a way that invites the faithful to increase awareness of and excitement for building the culture of vocations.

“A culture of vocations is one that provides the necessary support for others to hear and respond to God’s call in their lives” (USCCB). It is a goal of the Diocese of Owensboro be a place where every young man and woman has the support they need to discern their vocation and because of that support, have the courage to respond to God’s call to, “Follow me.”

This support must occur first in the family and then in the parish community. Praying for vocations and encouraging children to seek God’s plan for them not only builds a culture of vocations but strengthens families. Emphasizing God’s specific plan He has for each child’s life and the happiness that comes from following that plan should be of paramount importance to parents. Sometimes following God’s plan means we have to change our own plans.

I envision a culture of vocations in our parishes as one in which any visitor who enters our doors will know vocations are prayed for, encouraged and supported. Our Catholic schools and campus ministry programs must also be instruments of this very important mission. A key value to a Catholic education is the allowance and encouragement of prayer. Every student in our Catholic schools should be invited regularly to reflect upon their vocation and what God is calling them to do with their lives. Our Catholic schools and Catholic campus ministries must be places where young people are given an example of priesthood and consecrated life that is both attractive and admirable.

This is what building a culture of vocations is about and this is why the National Vocation Awareness Week is so important for drawing our attention to this vital mission of the Church. Every parish, school, and campus ministry vocation representative has received resources for celebrating the week. Look for opportunities to participate in this annual observance and to be a part of building a culture of vocations in the Diocese of Owensboro. Our work today is securing a priesthood for the future and the sacraments for your children, grandchildren, and future generations.

Sister Martha Keller leads her fourth mission trip to Mandeville, Jamaica

BY COMMUNICATIONS STAFF, URSULINE SISTERS OF MOUNT ST. JOSEPH

On Sept. 20, 2016, Sister Martha Keller, OSU, led seven parishioners from St. Jerome Parish in Fancy Farm on their second weeklong mission trip to Mandeville, Jamaica. She is the pastoral associate at St. Jerome and led a team in 2015 as well, and also twice led mission trips while serving at St. Francis de Sales Parish in Paducah from 2008-11.

“There’s something life-giving about being with the people,” she said. “We take school supplies, coats, money. We know we are making a difference.”

The team of six women and two men raised $3,000 to build a single family home for Angela and Lynroy Powell, who have 12 children.

Last year the group partnered with Water With Blessings, a ministry founded by Ursuline Sister Lorraine Lauter, that provides filters so people in impoverished nations can have clean drinking water. The St. Jerome group took 60 filters last year and took 30 more this year.

“The reward is that you’ve experienced the suffering Christ with the people,” she said. “They are in poor health, they have bad nutrition, but they are so in tune with God. They are not dwelling on their suffering, but appreciative of what they have. If you give them a shirt or some medicine, it’s like you gave them a million dollars. You can make a difference there.”

Ursuline Sister Monica Seaton begins journey as director of vocation ministry

BY COMMUNICATIONS STAFF, URSULINE SISTERS OF MOUNT ST. JOSEPH

When Sister Monica Seaton, OSU, was growing up, she thought priests and sisters were on a higher level than her.

“That leads to a feeling of unworthiness,” Sister Seaton said. “But that was seeing them from a distance. When you get to know a sister, you realize we’re human. You have to have that personal encounter.”

Finding opportunities for those “personal encounters” between sisters and women who may be called to religious life is now one of Sister Seaton’s goals in her new role as director of Vocation Ministry for the Ursuline Sisters of Mount St. Joseph.

“I don’t think there’s a lack of a call to religious life,” she said. “We need to let people know you don’t have to be a super human to be in religious life. We are ordinary people doing ordinary things in service to God’s people.”

Sister Amelia Stenger, OSU, congregational leader for the Ursuline Sisters, said Sister Seaton is energetic and has a strong commitment to the Ursuline community, two important qualities for a vocation director.

“I want to go to schools and youth groups in Owensboro,” said Sister Seaton “If you want a speaker, let me know.”

St. Paul School Orchestra breaks new ground

BY ST. PAUL SCHOOL STAFF, SPECIAL TO THE WESTERN KENTUCKY CATHOLIC

For the first time ever, St. Paul School in Grayson County began an orchestra program.

The idea was born in a Grayson County High School sophomore, Holly Sims, whose brother attended the small, parochial school in the rural St. Paul community.

Holly Sims and her friend, Tamara Goben, had both been members of the Grayson County Orchestra program since they were in elementary school. Both feeling very passionately about music, more specifically orchestra, talked about the need for an orchestra program at the school. Holly Sims' brother, Joseph Sims, was very excited about the idea in order to continue learning to play the violin.

Holly Sims brought the idea to her mother, Gina Sims, who teaches music at St. Paul School. Her mother was happy at the thought of having an orchestra at the school, but didn't realize how serious the girls were. Both girls were busy with extracurricular activities.

Once the 2015-16 school year began and both parents approved of the extra time that would be spent with this project, it had to be cleared through the school's principal.

Moving forward

At that time that principal was Fr. Steve Hohman, who is also the pastor of St. Paul and St. Elizabeth parishes in St. Paul and Clarkson, respectively. Holly Sims had written a letter describing the proposed idea to him. They met soon after to discuss the possibility of the program.

Fr. Hohman was certain of Holly Sims' good intentions. But like her parents, he was unsure if the dedication required was something the girls could put forth. However, he wanted to give them the opportunity to try, and asked why she wanted to start this program.

"The school needs an orchestra program because the students can learn how to read music," said Holly Sims, "and be prepared if they want to join orchestra or band once they get to high school."

She added that the students could also play during Mass, once they reach that level of performance: "It will also boost the students' self-esteem as their playing will improve over time."

After the program was approved by the principal/pastor, Holly Sims talked with GCHS Orchestra and band directors, Mr. and Mrs. Adam French and Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Bell, for permission and advice.

They also needed contact information for places to rent or purchase instruments and the necessary items for the program. The band directors made certain allowances to accommodate the girls' tight schedule.

First practice

In late February 2016, the girls' junior year, the St. Paul School Orchestra had its first practice.

Orchestra members then included cello players Terry Cundiff and Jarek Whitworth and violin players Joseph Sims, Rebecca DePoyster, John Smith, and Chloe Collard. All six members played for the first time.

practices were her mother, Gina Sims, Goben, and Judith Darst, another Grayson County High Orchestra student.

The group practiced on Mondays regularly, with the goal of playing two songs at the schools' eighth grade graduation. They were all happy to meet that goal in June.

Once that hurdle was overcome, the St. Paul Orchestra was very eager to begin plans for their first concert.

On July 27, 2016, parents, students, teachers and parishioners attended Mass at St. Elizabeth Parish. The orchestra played two songs during Mass; the concert began shortly after.

The concert featured a solo by Chloe Collard, a duet by Joseph Sims and Terry Cundiff, and a trio by Rebecca DePoyster, John Smith and Jarek Whitworth. After the concert everyone was invited to a small reception in the parish hall.

"This is the first time in the history of St. Paul School, which is over 100 years, that that we have ever had an orchestra," said Fr. Hohman after the concert. "Needless to say, we are pretty excited about this."

He said this was a "good start" for a program "that we hope to see grow and improve more with each passing year."

He expressed particular thanks to Gina and Holly Sims, and the others who made the orchestra happen.

"We thank the Lord for the kids who have entered the program, and their willingness to learn and improve," he said.

A new year

With the beginning of the 2016-17 school year, the new orchestra program is in full swing.

They played during Grandparents' Day Mass on Sept. 12 and are planning a fall concert, likely in November.

The hope is to continue to have GCHS students to lead the orchestra. This strictly voluntary program also provides the high schoolers, who are the directors, with service hours and a unique teaching experience.

"The students of St. Paul school are truly blessed to have the opportunity to participate in orchestra," said Kim Smith, St. Paul's new principal. "Being involved in the orchestra is giving our students the chance to strengthen their team-work, commitment, discipline, and self-confidence."

Smith added that the orchestra includes elements "that I as a parent want to instill in my own children, so being able to offer this for our students is very important."

She said that the school will never be able to thank the high schoolers enough for their dream of a St. Paul orchestra. "I plan for this program to continue to grow and continue to enrich our students' lives," she said.
